WYOMING FFA MEMBERS RECEIVE NATIONAL FFA COLLEGE SCHOLARSHIPS

CHEYENNE— Six Wyoming FFA members were rewarded for their accomplishments in the classroom and in the field with college scholarships from the National FFA Organization and its sponsors.

“These members were chosen based on their total performance and involvement in their school, FFA chapter and community,” said Stacy Broda, Wyoming FFA State Advisor. “The selection process looks at a student’s FFA involvement, work experience, supervised agriculture experience, community service, leadership skills and academics. Our members should be proud to be chosen from the thousands of members who applied.”

Members receiving scholarships were:

- Shelbie Aschenbrenner, Cheyenne Frontier FFA, Built Ford Tough/Spradley Barr Motors, Inc., $1,000
- Justin Lee, Pinedale FFA, John Deere/Stotz Equipment, $2,000
- Josiah Masie, Cheyenne High Plains FFA, RAM Trucks/Bob Ruwart Motors, $1,000
- Quade Palm, Bow River FFA, AGCO Company/Shively Hardware Co., $1,000
- Emily Robinette, High Plains FFA, Built Ford Tough/Spradley Barr Motors, Inc., $1,000
- Ashley Spatz, Burns FFA, Bunge North America, $1,000

The National FFA Organization awarded $2.2 million in scholarships designed to fit the diversity of the more than 550,000 FFA members across the nation.

“FFA can benefit its members in ways beyond developing leadership and career skills,” says Broda. “Wyoming FFA members received more than $50,000 in scholarships this year through their participation in our organization, including awards for scholastic achievement, community service and agriculture based-skills like livestock or horse evaluation. We are grateful to the businesses, organizations and institutions who donate funds to help our members achieve their goals of higher education.”

The Wyoming FFA Association is part of the National FFA Organization, formerly known as Future Farmers of America. This youth organization has more than half a million student members nationwide, and more than 2,000 in 50 chapters in Wyoming. The FFA mission is to make a positive difference in the lives of students by developing their potential for premier leadership, personal growth and career success through agricultural education.
